

SOUTH CANADIAN IN 10-FOOT RISE

Huge Wall of Water Is Sweeping Down From Texas Panhandle.

RESULT OF COAST STORM

Low Water Bridges Will Suffer and Tourists Forced to Detour.

Special to The World.
OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 20.—A giant wall of water, sweeping westward, has been reported as reaching the South Canadian river at Tulsa, Okla., from the west, yesterday, swollen by torrential rains at the headwaters in northern New Mexico caused by the recent hurricane which devastated Corpus Christi, Texas, in the Texas panhandle yesterday and last night reports a nose four feet high had occurred with several feet more in sight.

Flood warnings were issued for the entire stretch of the river between Tulsa and the western border line of the state. A tunnel-type line of gas pipelines and refineries with properties which may be affected by a flood have been warned.

Will Do Great Damage.
The rise in sight will do extensive damage and will wash away a number of low water bridges. If several more feet should be added to what now is expected, the flood will be more serious, it was said.
The weather bureau.

Henry T. Washington, assessor, was called in to estimate John P. Madansky, meteorologist, said Madansky can expect a 10-foot rise today. Purcell and Norman will get nine feet. The rise will set in at Tulsa and continue north to Norman, Purcell, Calvin will have a short rise with the crest passing Sunday night or Monday morning. A rise that will be felt at Tulsa.
This will endanger some property there as far as the city line.

Warnings to be Given.
More warnings will be issued as reports come in from along the river.
Washington said. The state board of agriculture was notified of the impending flood yesterday and assisted in preparing warnings.

Photanthemations of the flood came yesterday reached the weather service yesterday morning that an 8-foot wall of water had gone over the river at Taos, in New Mexico, where the South Canadian has its source. The water from Taos, northeast, the river had reached an approximate stage of 29 feet or more but was falling.

Result of Hurricane.
Heavy rains fell throughout northern New Mexico and the Texas panhandle as a result of the tropical hurricane which struck Corpus Christi Sunday night. Good rains also have fallen through the western portion of the state along the course of the river, but these had no effect on the stream.

Low water bridges, ferries, and tunnels will be affected by the rise and probably will cause a large number of wrecks en route to the state fair in Tulsa, many miles. The flood is expected to reach as far as it can, and the river probably will be back to normal by the middle of next week.

Special to The World.
OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 20.—At a mass meeting of citizens held in the auditorium of the court room building, the League of Nations was rejected by a vote of 750 to 1. The meeting was called by democratic leader, for the purpose of securing a discussion and endorsement of the league. Judge George L. Burke was elected chairman of the meeting and W. C. Hodges, attorney, was named secretary. A large audience of nations, as proposed by the Paris peace conference, the president was presented as an issue to be taken by the meeting and either accepted or rejected, the two sides to the question being represented by Judge McDougal, Tom Wallace, attorney; Judge S. D. Decker, Bob Keenan, attorney; Ex-Senator Jones, W. Jacobs. A large attendance was brought to the highest pitch as the debating drew toward a climax and a vote was called.

The decision of this afternoon's meeting represents practically the position taken by Creek county citizens in the league, opponents decided.

OKLAHOMA STATE FAIR TO GET ACCIDENT INSURANCE

Special to The World.
OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 20.—The state insurance commission found no one confronted with an application for accident insurance which it had not dealt with since the state association of insurance companies applied for an all over which the insurance company offered to implement the fair association against all liability for accidents during the period of the fair.
It is a sort of Lloyd's gamble on the part of the company offering the contract. It is understood, however, that the amount of liability carried from the fair association company agreed to underwrite claims all incidents that occur in the fair grounds during the period of the exposition. The premium was not disclosed by the committee but it is said to have been quoted at one day for the eight day period.
